about health centers

Community health centers are local clinics that provide care to people who live in medically underserved areas. Their services are tailored to fit the unique needs of the communities they serve, and provide high-quality, affordable, and comprehensive integrated healthcare to everyone — regardless of who they are, where they come from, or their ability to pay. Many health center patients are low-income and face barriers to care, making CHCs an essential part of the safety net.

Health centers provide cost-effective primary and preventive care, including dental, behavioral health services, substance use disorder treatment, vision, and pharmacy, that helps people get and stay healthy. They also connect their patients to social services, such as food or housing assistance, and enabling services that help them access care, such as transportation or translation. Those factors, combined with the ability to address multiple health needs under one roof, are why health centers are leaders in treating chronic diseases, reducing health disparities, and keeping people out of the emergency department.

Community Health Centers

Community health centers – sometimes called by their formal name, Federally Qualified Health Centers (FQHCs) – are community-based and patient-directed organizations that deliver comprehensive primary care and other medical services, dental care, behavioral health care, substance use care, vision care, and more for patients of all ages.

Health centers overcome geographic, cultural, linguistic, and other barriers by coordinating and integrating care for patients with multiple health needs, providing supportive services like health education, translation, and transportation that promote access to health care, and using systematic quality improvement approaches to improve health outcomes, including leveraging health information technology.

Health centers operate under the direction of patient-majority governing boards and are organized as public and private non-profit organizations. They serve areas and populations that experience recognized challenges accessing healthcare or having sufficient healthcare providers in their area, and some health centers focus on populations with unique needs including individuals and families experiencing homelessness, agricultural workers, and residents of public housing. Health centers also meet and maintain compliance with a strict set of administrative, clinical, and financial requirements which include transparently sharing information about their patients, services, and quality of care.

Most health centers receive some federal grant funding to reinforce their services (those that don't are called FQHC Look-Alikes), but federal funding is a smaller part of their overall budget. The majority of health center funding comes from Medicaid, Medicare, and private insurance reimbursement for providing healthcare along with supportive programs providing prescription drug discounts, free vaccines, and more to help stretch limited resources. Health centers provide services regardless of patients' ability to pay and charge for services on a sliding fee scale.

All 42 Community Health Center organizations in Michigan are members of MPCA, including 39 that receive federal health center program funding and 3 Look-Alikes.

Tribal Health Centers and Urban Indian Health Programs

Tribal Health Centers are operated by Tribes or Tribal Organizations and provide care to members of federally recognized Tribes living on or near reservations. Urban Indian Organizations are outpatient health care programs and facilities that specialize in caring for American Indians and Alaska natives who do not live on or near a reservation. Both types of organizations provide comprehensive health care services which include medical, community health, dental, mental health, and substance use services.

Tribal and urban Indian health centers employ a holistic approach encompassing body, mind, and spirit to balance their focus on physical health to address both chronic and infectious diseases and mental health through culturally relevant approaches including traditional healing practices.

Seven Tribal Health Centers and one Urban Indian Health Program are members of MPCA.

Ryan White Program Providers

The Ryan White HIV/AIDS Program (RWHAP) helps low-income people living with HIV by providing medical care, medications, and support services. Each year, more than half of all people diagnosed with HIV receive help through the RWHAP.

Local, community-based organizations- including a number of Michigan health centers- funded through parts of the RWHAP provide a comprehensive continuum of outpatient HIV primary care services, including HIV counseling, testing, and referral; medical evaluation and clinical care; other primary care services; and referrals to other health services.

What is a Patient-Centered Medical Home?

Patient-Centered Medical Home (PCMH) is an approach for providing quality, comprehensive, coordinated primary and preventive care to adults, youth, and children. At its heart, this model of care fosters strong relationships with patients and their families to better care for a person as a whole.

PCMHs deliver higher quality care that comprehensively addresses an individual's needs. The intended outcomes of a high-functioning PCMH health center include improved patient outcomes, patient safety, and patient experience. PCMHs can lower costs through the delivery of evidence-based patient care, reducing waste and improving efficiencies, increasing delivery of preventive services, and fostering population health management. Many of the PCMH goals rely on improved communication and coordination among health care providers and patients and increased patient engagement through a high-functioning care team.

Health centers have practiced PCMH principles for decades and today 85% of Michigan's community health centers have achieved PCMH recognition or accreditation via the Accreditation Association for Ambulatory Health Care, The Joint Commission, or the National Committee for Quality Assurance. MPCA provides leadership, guidance, support, and customized technical assistance to members to achieve and maintain PCMH recognition and pursue PCMH initiatives.

The fundamental principles on which health centers were established more than 60 years ago set them apart from other providers of health care. Health centers:

- Are located in or serve medically underserved areas or populations.
- Are governed by a community board composed of 51 percent or more of health center patients who represent the population served.
- Provide comprehensive primary health care services as well as support services (e.g., education, translation, transportation) that promote access to health care.
- Offer services to all with fees adjusted based on the ability to pay.
- Meet strict performance and accountability requirements regarding administrative, clinical, and financial operations as established by the federal government.

Michigan health centers are part of a nationwide network of nearly 1,500 health centers spread across 50 states and all U.S. territories that provide care to over 32 million people nationwide.

Never smoke or allow anyone to smoke where medical oxygen is used.

Medical oxygen can cause materials to ignite more easily and make fires burn at a faster rate than normal.

Careless smoking is the leading cause of fatal fires in Michigan.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS TIP

FIRE ESCAPE PLANNING for people with mobility issues

On average you have less than 3 minutes to escape a home safely after smoke alarms have sounded. Have a plan designed around your abilities.

Things to Consider

- Can you get out on your own without equipment or assistance?
- If you need equipment, be sure it is accessible at all times
- If you need someone to assist you, answer the who, what, when, where and how
- Make sure your equipment fits through all exits
- Use a bedroom on ground floor close to an exit if possible
- Install exit ramps or widen doors to make escape easier

Know Two Ways Out – Establish two (2) viable ways out of every room.

Involve Others – Include family, neighbors, friends or a building manager in practicing your escape plan.

Windows and Doors – Practice opening locked windows and doors.

Service Animals – Be sure to include any service animals in your plan. escape planning.
